Last week this column carried an attack on Judge Ira Thompson, candidate for associate justice of the supreme court of California, on the premise that Thompson eight years ago attempted to throttle the press for criticizing his decision in a water deal which unfavorably affected hundreds of farmers in one of our southern valleys.

Norman H. Parks, publisher of the Township Register at Niles, was the unfortunate recipient of Thompson's wrath, for at that time he was defending the farmers at Holtville, where was centered the water dispute which involved private interests, the Lower Colorado river, and the aforementioned farmers, who were taking a royal balking.

Since that time Parks has continued to fight Thompson at every opportunity, and it is my belief that when the good judge sits to a bitter breakfast the morning after election he will have it through his thick skull that the freedom of the press, however small the publication, is not to be lightly trod upon.

And there's a moral for a lot of other bigoted individuals and groups of individuals I could mention. Our own charming valley isn't altogether free of them either.

The recent revival of the Ku Klux Klan in Santa Clara county furnishes an excellent example of the type.

Outside of that about the only display that takes my eye is that to be seen in the local political arena. There the boys have hurled their derbies, and their opponents are busy trying to kick holes in the other fellow's kelly while at the same time preserving their own from similar onslaughts. It is all very amusing, and nothing more so than the lofty ideals protested by the candidates, and the pre-election promises by which the public is egged on to the polls.

A local farm paper advocates a "clean sweep" in order to pull Santa Clara county out of the dung hill into which it has allegedly been cast by the politicians, and restore it to the pedestal labeled "Virtue." A pleasant thought indeed, but one which we doubt could be accomplished at the polls. For three reasons: First, too many of the rank and file seem to enjoy conditions as they are said to be; second, those who object appear to be too lethargic to do anything about it and are in the minority anyway, and third, if the fast-failing morals of the people can, after all, be laid on the heads of "political bosses," there the sins will remain, for any attempt at legislated morality will either be counted out at the polls, or the successful candidate will be merely another tool to replace an one which has outlived his usefulness—in other words, one who has become known for what he is.

Despite the calamity howlers, however, there are some

FARMERS' DEBT
PROBLEMS CAN BE CONCILIATED

Provisions of the Frazier-Lemke amendment to the national bankruptcy act do not release the farmers from their debts but do provide a last resort to protect the farmers from losing their property in event that it is impossible to find any other way through debt adjustment committees to scale down their obligations, it was stated today by Dr. Arthur Baldwin, chairman of the Santa Clara county farm debt adjustment committee.

Interpretation of the Frazier-Lemke amendment, which was signed by the president on June 28 was received by Baldwin from the California Farm Debt Adjustment committee, of which T. C. Tucker is chairman with headquarters at San Francisco. There are now 54 voluntary county farm debt adjustment committees in California, according to reports received here. The committees are working on a voluntary basis to assist farmers who, due to prevailing economic conditions, require a readjustment of all their finances. The committees are cooperating also with the county conciliators appointed by the federal courts.

"According to the interpretation of the Frazier-Lemke amendment, it is apparent that the work of the farm debt adjustment committee of this county will be considerably affected and unquestionably increased," Baldwin said. "The farmers who can be helped by the work of our committee should seek the relief provided by the Frazier-Lemke amendment only as a last resort."

"It is the opinion that under this new amendment the local farmer requiring relief from his financial obligations should apply first of all to the county farm debt adjustment committee. If it is not possible for this committee to secure necessary scale-downs, extension or compositions on a basis few mighty fine men running for public office in Santa Clara county. Practically all of the corruptible offices are being sought by at least one incorruptible man.

Again, and regardless of those who moan for the county's lost virtue, a survey of the state would probably reveal that Santa Clara county, taken as a whole and in comparison, is no better and no worse than its neighbors. The thing that really matters is the fact that this county is perhaps in better financial shape than any other in the state, with correspondingly low rates of taxation when our many modern advantages are taken into consideration. And that condition couldn't exist if the local government was manned entirely by a crowd of grafters.

SALINAS WILL
ANNUAL SHOW

Salinas, July 25—All was in readiness here today for the opening of the 23rd annual California rodeo, July 26 to 29, at which thousands of visitors will be entertained in a roundup celebration reminiscent of the old west.

The tap of high-heeled boots and the clink-clank of spurs are heard everywhere in Salinas, as cowboys and cowgirls continue to arrive in large numbers to participate in the rodeo. Heading the cavalcade of cowpunchers is Clay Carr of Visalia, California, champion cowboy in 1933 and one of the leading contenders for the honor this year.

Carr will put his skill and daring against the best riders and ropers of the country in a spectacular program of track and arena events at Rodeo park. The list of daily events will include bronco "busting," steer decorating, bull riding, cowboy and cowgirl races and trick and fancy riding. Points scored at the roundup here will go far toward determining the championship under the rules of the Rodeo Association of America.

Dedicated to the support and encouragement of the livestock industry in California, the Salinas roundup will also feature a horse fair at which stock from the leading ranches and stables of the state will be exhibited, it was announced.

Growers Must Sign
Up by July 31st To
Be In the First Pool

The board of directors of the California Almond Growers exchange have announced that the first pool of the 1934 crop will be open only to the deliveries of those members of the organization who are on the rolls as of July 31, 1934.

This action is based on the is agreeable to both debtor and creditors, the committee will then recommend to the county conciliator what action, in its opinion, the conciliator should take with regard to the farmer making application for an adjustment. Such recommendations, in most cases will be accompanied by the suggestion that the conciliator first attempt a settlement without committing the farmer to bankruptcy under the Frazier-Lemke amendment."

Baldwin stated that the county farm debt adjustment committee will meet regularly depending on the number of applications it receives from farmers for hearing. There is no charge made to farmers who present their cases and the work of the committee is on a voluntary basis. Members of the committee are Harry Barnes, Joseph Char-grin, A. V. Picchetti and C. G. Spargur.

Miss Anna Prout
Becomes Bride of
Stanley De Selle

Amid circumstances of exceptional brilliance, Miss Anna Louise Prout became the bride of Stanley De Selle Friday evening at Saint Paul's church in San Jose. The Rev. James Andrews presided.

The bridal procession was beautiful in an ingenious color arrangement as it moved down the aisle to the music of Lohengrin's Wedding March, the bride wearing a white satin gown and carrying a bouquet of gardenias, and her attendants combining in a beautiful background of yellow and marine blue. The bride's dress was cut in the fashionable princess style, with high cowl neck, while Miss Leona Prout, the bride's sister and maid of honor, wore an aqua-marine gown of muslin de soie. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Anita Maynard and Miss Marjory Prout, attired in yellow organdy and carrying French bouquets. Miss Georgiana Lee Newcombe, flower-girl to the bridal procession, completed the escort.

Attending the groom were Ellis De Selle, the best man, and Harold Gardner and Leiland Lea, ushers.

After the wedding a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents on North Central avenue in Campbell.

traditional policy of the exchange to close pools as early as possible and to make returns based on the best prices that can be secured under the conditions of the law.

At this time of the year, directors point out, it is necessary to meet the demands of the trade on the basis of the deliveries to be made by the existing membership.

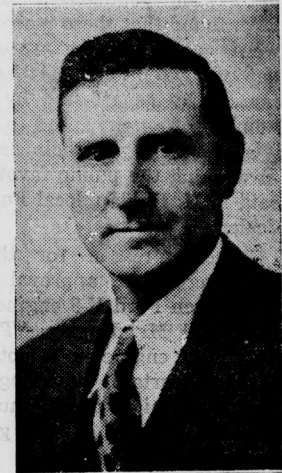

An influx of new members, with additional tonnage, can so dislocate such projected marketing plans that both the time of the closing of pools and the price levels can be decidedly disturbed.

The closing of this first pool, however, according to the announcement, does not mean that growers who may become members after July 31 will be deprived of the privilege of having their deliveries handled by the exchange.

Their tonnage will be included in a second membership pool, with the returns and time of accounting governed by market conditions which cannot be determined at this time.

Already the exchange has received in recent months a very substantial number of new members and consequent additional tonnage. Aware of the necessity of supporting the fundamental policy of cooperative marketing, which is the protection of the interests of the members, the board of directors have decided to accept at this time only such additional memberships as in their opinion will not interfere with this established policy.

RICH SEEKS
SUPERVISOR'S
JOB, 4TH DIST.

A vigorous campaign for supervisor in the Fourth district is being waged by Clarence L. Rich, well known Cupertino orchardist.

Campaign headquarters have been opened in Willow Glen, at 1161 Lincoln avenue, with Bob McArthur in charge. Both McArthur and Rich are widely known for their keen interest in civic matters. Besides having made a success of his own 'cot and prune orchard, Mr. Rich has given generously of his time as chairman of the Water conservation project and as head of the San Jose district in the Prune Pool.

Besides a wide circle of staunch friends made since he came to this district in 1908, Mr. Rich is being urged for the supervisory post by many who gained first-hand knowledge of his honesty and ability through his handling of water conservation and Prune Pool difficulties.

Friends are invited to call at Rich headquarters in Willow Glen for car stickers and other campaign helps.

Machines Hurt
Two At Cannery

Two minor casualties were reported this week by Dr. W. I. Merrill, who took several stitches in a wound for Alice Shepard, 19, of the Ainsley camp, who caught her hand in one of the new pear machines at the Drew plant.

Merle Murty, local youth, injured a hand in a syrup machine last week. Infection set in, and the injured member required lancing Sunday. Murty expects to be at work again this week.

Members of the board of directors of We and Our Neighbors club were guests at a recent party at the home of Miss Anna Kopp. She was assisted by her sisters, the Misses Bertha, Emma and Clara Kopp.

MERCHANTS IN MOVE TO KEEP
TRADE AT HOME

The Campbell Merchants' association, a branch of the Santa Clara association, moved to begin a "buy Campbell" program with which to compete with the "greater San Jose days" activities being carried on in the Garden City.

In the course of considerable investigation, it was discovered that only 30 per cent of local money was being spent with Campbell merchants, and George Cracknell, secretary of the main committee in Santa Clara, suggested that immediate action be taken to prevent such a large portion of consumers' money from flowing to San Jose. Accordingly, Dan Clark, Percy Dunlap, and Walter Smiley were appointed as a committee to work out a program of resistance.

It was pointed out by Cracknell that much of the discrepancy in price, as between similar commodities sold in large and small districts, is due to the fact that there is a huge disparity in the volume of business done in two such communities. The way to prevent such discrepancy, he believed, was not to carry more local business to the larger community, but to strengthen the smaller merchant by increasing his business so that his prices can reflect the lesser costs which accompany large scale buying.

SANTA CLARA
CYO BALL CLUB
TRIMS LOCAL 9

The Santa Clara C. Y. O. ball club came over Sunday and won over Campbell by a 9 to 3 score. Al Freitas on the mound for C. Y. O. pitched great ball and received excellent support from his teammates.

"Spec" Clark, for Campbell, was pounded hard, and gave up 17 hits. Four errors made behind him did not help much. Cowan and Quain were Campbell's heavy hitters, each getting two. Cowan hit a homer, as did Boland for the visitors. Quain, Bertocchini, Falconi and Techeira each hit three safe ones for C. Y. O.

Campbell's club has decided to hang up the gloves for the balance of the summer. Some of the boys are working in the fruit and find it difficult to play on Sunday. During the last two games Campbell has not had its full team out and took two beatings. They will start again about Sept 1, and will be in shape to make a play for the winter league on Oct. 1.

Two new arrivals in Campbell bear the illustrious names of William McKinley, who has taken up residence on North Central avenue, and Howard Taft, who has moved into a house at 15 Dillon avenue.

VOLUME 31, NUMBER 43

CAMPBELL, SANTA CLARA COUNTY, CALIFORNIA

WED., JULY 25, 1934

The FARMERS CORNER
by RALPH H. TAYLOR
Executive Secretary
Agricultural Council of California

Caught in a veritable labyrinth of new - born tax schemes, cure-alls and hastily-conceived panaceas for financial disability, California's taxpayers and lawmakers face a baffling problem, in the months just ahead, in their search for the road back to state solvency.

Perhaps the greatest danger in any period of financial emergency is the constant threat that attractively-baited but unsound tax proposals, hurriedly enacted under the spur of necessity, will complicate the problem instead of relieving it.

And it is this danger—far more serious than the state deficit—which confronts voters as well as legislators in the present tax crisis.

California farm organizations, together with taxpayers' groups and other civic and public bodies, can do no more important work in the next few months than to make a careful and impartial study of every suggested tax change. Both voters and lawmakers owe it to themselves—and the taxpayers' pocket-books—to make haste slowly in their search for the answer to the tax dilemma.

Among the myriad programs already suggested, which involve major changes and require the most careful scrutiny, are the following:

1. A state ad valorem, or state property tax, projected as a means of offsetting state revenue losses through the transfer, next year, of utility property to county tax rolls. A maximum ad valorem tax (25 per cent of the state budget) would have the effect of canceling the further relief intended for local taxpayers by the shift of utility to local tax rolls.
2. A gross transactions tax, recently put forward under the name of Syncrotax, levying 2 per cent on all transactions and designed to supplant all other tax measures. The danger in this tax is that it would "pyramid," a tax being levied on each turn-over, and that large corporations might be favored at the expense of the individual operator.
3. A "service tax" of 2-1/2 per cent to catch many professions and businesses now exempt from the state sales tax. This would apply to dentists, doctors, barbers and many other crafts and professions and would, in effect, operate as a gross income tax on these groups.
4. The so-called "single tax" proposal, designed to replace the sales tax and place the entire cost of government on the common property taxpayer. Improved and unimproved properties would be taxed alike.

With a deficit of from $100,000,000 to $133,000,000 to be met, based on the present cash shortage, plus the gap between present income and outgo projected over the coming two years, many other plans are under consideration.

Most recently suggested is a proposal to delay the return of utility property to the counties, saving this $65,000,000 in revenues for the state temporarily until new state revenue sources can be developed. This would prevent the 15 per cent additional tax relief for local taxpayers scheduled next year under the Riley Stewart plan.

And aggravating the problem is the possibility that many legislators will come to Sacramento next January pledged to amendment of the sales tax to exempt foodstuffs

Ford Sales Mount Throughout U. S.

Mounting Ford sales here and in all other parts of the country which have made this popular low-priced car the outstanding sales favorite of the automobile buying public throughout the nation have caused much comment in motoring circles.

"Trade experts have tried to assign the reason for this nationwide popularity, but have found that these reasons were really legion—speed, power, exceptional performing ability as attested by a number of recent speed tests—all have played their part in winning the public favor," said P. H. Dunlap, local Ford dealer.

"Another reason for this sweeping public approval is the proven Ford V-8 engine," continued Mr. Dunlap. "The V-type of engine in a motor car has certain advantages over the straight type because of shorter travel of both gas and water.

"Because it is shorter, the V-type motor occupies less frame length and leaves more room for body, but there are also other advantages," he said. "In the case of the Ford V-8 with the dual carburetor, the intake charge of gas has much shorter travel and is equally distributed to all cylinders and other necessities, which would reduce income under the sales levy more than 30 per cent.

Still other legislative candidates, according to reports, are being quietly pledged to oppose a state income tax, while others—especially in farming areas—are pledged to support an income levy.

Considered as a whole, the problem calls for intelligent, careful appraisal, without too many hastily-given and binding pledges which might make it impossible to reach an agreement on a just and proper solution.

The most serious tax crisis in California's history requires, above all else, a new order of honesty and sincerity on the part of all public officials, and candidates for public office—a sincerity which will refuse to trade away California's financial security for personal gain or advantage.

KIWANIS NOTES By Heck

Charles Rosendale of Salinas, district lieutenant-governor of Kiwanis, addressed the local club yesterday on the continental convention held at Toronto recently, which he was privileged to attend, and pointed out that in spite of the wretched circumstances of depression which prevail, the Kiwanis club was able to announce an increase of membership of 6500. Mr. Rosendale talked brilliantly, and enthusiastically, indicating with just pride the many striking achievements of the club in service and public betterment during the past year.

Several announcements of particular importance were made from the chair.

On Wednesday evening, Aug. 8, the Campbell club will be entertained at dinner by the Greater Santa Clara club in that city. On Saturday coming the golf team of the local club will swing into the first phase of its competition with the Los Gatos group, in response to a challenge of a "contest in versatility," and the men selected to represent Campbell will meet the acid test on the Rinconada course in the afternoon. Tonight members of the club will journey to Los Gatos to unite in a common meeting with the Rotary club there.

Harry West, Ford representative of Richmond, will address the club next week. Percy "Ford" Dunlap will be in the chair.

inders. Water circulation is improved, for in the V-8 engine, water from the radiator passes only to two cylinders on each side to get to the last two. Another advantage of this type of construction is the short, rigid crankshaft, with less tendency to whip or oscillate than is the case with one that is longer."

The engine of the Ford V-8 for 1934 is fundamentally unchanged, but the use of a new dual carburetor and intake manifold and other improvements, provides greater gasoline and oil economy. The power of the engine has been increased 12-percent and tests show that it gives between two and three more miles per gallon of gasoline than for-

A Paris Breakfast

NEARLY every true devotee of that fascinating city, the capital of France, has made the traditional trip at dawn to the "Halles Centrales," the central markets, to see the auctioning off of the foods brought in from the country. Mounds of artichokes and other vegetables, heaps of crisp green lettuce and huge bunches of white celery, to be consumed that day in the world-famous restaurants of Paris, are bid in briskly during that morning hour. There is much bargaining and banter and a great hubbub of rapid talk.

And after you are tired of watching the husky Frenchmen in their blue blouses and the sharp-tongued women in their black dresses, and feel suddenly faint for food, then you go to a restaurant and sit down to onion soup. This is the famous dish of the Paris central markets. Delicate, elusive, but flavorful, warming and satisfying, it makes you wonder why on earth you don't have it at home every day.

A Difficulty Solved

But there's a difficulty about this. Just what kind of onion soup do you think your own particular cook would make for you? If you have a French chef—yes—perhaps! But the average American cook is incapable of making anything that remotely resembles that Parisian early morning gastronomic poem known as onion soup.

There's a way out, however, a way that can be followed in every city and town in our country. Canned onion soup with the true Parisian flavor is now available everywhere. Just sip it and shut your eyes, and you'll fancy yourself in Paris among all the cheerful uproar of the Halles Centrales at dawn.*

Compensation Act Is Lauded By C. C. Young

Los Angeles, July 25—Humanitarian laws enacted during his term as governor and supported by him in the assembly have alleviated in some measure the distress of depression and unemployment prevalent today, it was asserted by former Governor C. C. Young in an address here tonight, in the interests of his candidacy for the Republican nomination for governor. At the same time, Young pointed to the legislative record of Acting Governor Frank F. Merriam, as opposing such measures.

"It is with considerable satisfaction that I call your attention to the many welfare and humanitarian laws enacted during my four years as governor and chief executive of this great state; during my eight years as lieutenant governor and second in command of the state government; and during my many years as member and speaker of the state assembly," Young said. "One of the first and perhaps the most important of these measures was the workmen's compensation insurance and safety act of 1913. This measure was adopted during the administration of Governor Hiram Johnson. Not only as a member of the assembly did I battle for this great act, but I was also then speaker of the assembly, and as such appointed the committee that recommended its passage. Its purpose was protection and security for the working men and women of this state—to make certain that no family would be left destitute through the injury or death of its bread-winner.

"This humane safeguard was to be accomplished through placing on industry the cost of its operation. If a man or woman is injured while working, the cost of rehabilitating that person is upon his industry. At first, the workmen's compensation act was bitterly opposed by many of the reactionary leaders, who have ever since in succeeding sessions attempted to chisel it down. Not the least among these reactionaries, I am sorry to say, was the present Acting Governor, Frank

Built in EARNING POWER

HERE'S GOOD NEWS if you thought you couldn't afford an electric refrigerator. Several leading manufacturers have built a brand new FARM refrigerator. It has all the important features of the University of California design, plus many new improvements. We promise that it surpasses anything you have ever seen before.

The Farm "25"—smallest of the new models, is pictured above. Here is an ideal size for the average farm. Ruggedly constructed for a lifetime of heavy-duty service, it is nevertheless extremely inexpensive. And it may be operated for as little as 5c a day.

The Farm "25," however, is only one of the new models. Others are available up to 125 cubic feet capacity. Or if you are handy with tools, you can even build one yourself—we will supply the plans. The important thing is to get an electric refrigerator on the job at once. California winters are no protection against food-spoilage and the losses in summer are tremendous.
